Our Mr. January was the fourth baby born on April 15th, 1945, in Philadelphia, at the Bryn Mawr Hospital to the loving parents, Rayburn and Janet.

He graduated from Yale University and went back to Pennsylvania to complete his Masters and PhD in American and European history.

He discovered early in his life that he had an attraction to older portly men.

At the age of 26 Mr. January went to Washington DC and began work at the National Archives.

“Joe” his first love was a retired Army Colonel and they managed to travel and grew very close.

At age 30 Mr. January was married, and just four years later divorced.

By 1980 Mr. January had explored Fire Island, been to the Eagle and joined ‘Girth and Mirth’ in New York.

Then there was a string of “chubby lovers” for Mr. January. They were: John, George, Jim, Phipps, Joe, Joe, and Reverend Jim.

After retiring from the Government, he moved to South Florida where he met his “Main Man”, discovered Paradise, and has lived his life free from the constraints of his old mainline Philadelphia upbringing.
